Wood Hudson in the News

Happy Spring! Did you see us? Wood Hudson Cancer Research Laboratory was recently featured by both FOX19 News "Through the Lens" and in the Northern Kentucky Tribune. The media coverage highlighted our ongoing application process for the Summer 2025 Undergraduate Research Education Program (UREP), which offers students hands-on experience in cancer research under the guidance of experienced scientists. We are honored by this recognition and remain committed to preparing the next generation of biomedical researchers. Thank you to our local media partners. Here are links to these stories:

UREP Selection Process Continues

Following recent media coverage, the Undergraduate Research Education Program (UREP) has received triple the number applications for the Summer 2025 session compared to previous years. Due to the unprecedented volume of highly qualified applicants, the selection process remains ongoing. Interviews with prospective participants are currently underway. We look forward to introducing the outstanding students who will be selected to join the program, scheduled to run from June 2 through August 1, 2025. Look for more details in an upcoming edition of our e-Newsletter.
