May is National Cancer Research Month

Wood Hudson Cancer Research Laboratory proudly recognizes May as National Cancer Research Month, a time to honor the critical role that research plays in cancer prevention, diagnosis, and treatment. This month highlights the importance of continued investment in biomedical research. Research and education advance our understanding of cancer at its most fundamental level. We also celebrate the dedication of our research community, including our staff, former and incoming students, collaborators, and supporters, who make the programs at Wood Hudson possible. We invite you to join us in supporting cancer research by sharing our mission, following our updates, and contributing to the future.

Flying Pig Marathon

Wood Hudson was proud to serve as an official charity partner in the 2025 Flying Pig Marathon, one of the region's most celebrated events. With your help, we successfully raised over $2,000 for cancer research. Several members of the Wood Hudson community participated in the event, including Dr. Joseph Bruns and Percy Carter, Chairman, along with several former UREP students. Congratulations to all who supported this effort.
